

Participant request form – British Stammering Association

Thank you for contacting us regarding your research. We're very supportive of research initiatives as we know research has an important role to play in developing understanding of stammering, how the outside world responds to stammering and the different forms of support available.

We understand that you are looking for people who stammer, friends or family or others to take part in your research. Before we agree to your request, please could you answer the following questions:

Your name:

E-mail address:

Telephone number:

University (if applicable)

Supervisor (if applicable)

Date:

1. Project title:
2. Brief description of your research (100 words max)
3. What are your reasons for wanting to carry out this research?
4. What difference will your research make to the lives of people who stammer?
5. Have you involved people who stammer (or their friends and family) in the design of the research?
6. Who's carrying out the research?
7. What's the timescale?
8. What type of participants are you looking for and how many?
9. What is the start date and end date for involving participants in the research? (This will help us know how long to keep your request on our website.)
10. Some specific questions about data collection:
  - How many sessions will participants need to attend?
  - How long is each session?
  - Will a follow-up session be required?
  - Will participants be paid? And if so how much?
  - Have you considered all potential risks?
11. Have you received ethical approval? If so, please could you send us a copy of the relevant documents.

And finally what can you do for people who stammer?

At the end of your project, we'd like you to send us a brief report on your research findings, presented in a way that's easily accessible to people who stammer and is engaging and interesting (nothing dry and dusty!) It could be a written report (max number of words 800), podcast, video or animation.

Please return your completed form to: editor@stamma.org Your participant research request will be passed on to the BSA research sub-committee and you will be notified within two weeks of whether it has been accepted or not. If it is accepted, we will agree to include details of your research project on the Stamma website and to post details about it on Facebook and Twitter.

Many thanks.
